Medical productivity and clinical service consultancy

Four Eyes Insight is a medical productivity and clinical service consultancy, founded in 2013 by Dr Henry Carleton and Brian Wells. Henry and Brian both come from a medical background, and the business proposition to acute NHS trusts leverages the founders' clinical experience to help them to identify and implement efficiency and performance improvement across clinical settings.

The business's services are in high demand partly due to the funding pressure placed on the NHS. Nearly 60% of the NHS's budget is directed to acute trusts and as a consequence, they are experiencing the greatest share of efficiency saving pressures. Four Eyes Insight's clinical productivity consulting assists trusts in realising savings.

"At Four Eyes, we improve efficiency across health care systems. To do this in a sustainable way takes the right combination of technology and people. Our dedicated, high-performing teams bring hands-on NHS experience at the frontline of operational improvement. Our primary focus now is on launching cutting-edge software that drives efficiencies to put patients at the centre of care."
