Leading specialist biometrics Contract Research Organisation

Founded in 2012 by Matthew and Emma Jones and headquartered in London, Veramed provides statistical consulting, programming and study reporting, and market launch and commercialisation services to clients globally. The business has since scaled both nationally and internationally through establishing offices in multiple locations across the UK and international offices in mainland Europe, the Ukraine and the US. Alongside this, investments in new services and continuing to build a high performing team with a collaborative culture have led to the business realising market-leading-organic growth.

Veramed is a people-focused biometrics Clinical Research Organisation (CRO) that provides its clients with the assurance and close collaboration needed to deliver successfully across all stages of the clinical trial process. Services range from consultancy, mid-stream activities, analysis & reporting, to post-reporting, regulatory & HTA submission and market launch and commercialisation.

As a B Corp Certified® business, Veramed meets the highest standards of social and environmental performance, transparency, and accountability. In making its business more accountable, Veramed is able to build trusting relationships with its clients and staff, continually exceed expectations and systematically deliver on process and innovation initiatives.
